WASHINGTON (September 7) – Congressman Spencer Bachus (AL-6) discussed jobs and the economy this morning during an interview on CNBC “Squawk Box.”

Bachus, as Chairman of the House Financial Services Committee, was invited to preview President Obama’s jobs address to a joint session of Congress on Thursday evening.

“It should be a speech to the American people – those that don’t have jobs, those who are worried about their jobs, and to those businesses that want to create jobs,” Bachus said.

Congressman Bachus, who met with employers in Alabama during the month of August, said businesses are ready to create jobs.

“They just need us to get out of the way and repeal some of these regulations that are killing jobs and creating uncertainty. You can start with Dodd-Frank, with the health care bill, and with all of these energy regulations,” Bachus added.

To view the complete interview, click here.